

What's a Brownfield? Chances are there's one in your city. In fact, more than 200 have already been cleaned up in Missouri. Brownfields are the forgotten parts of your community such as abandoned residential, industrial or commercial properties, sites that may be complicated by the presence of hazardous substances and pollutants. If you're a contractor, developer, prospective property owner or concerned citizen who wants to take back your community, you might qualify for state funding.
